We are sending you the remarks of the scientific editor. Revisi dalam naskah artikel: Perspectives of Science and Education Komentar Review 1: 1. Dear authors! Notes on the text. So far, the research is very weak for such a large research team, both theoretically and in the breadth of the experimental sample. There are many sources listed in the introduction, but not a single thought of your own from the authors, what is "scientific online argumentation", as well as the definitions of "Argumentation", "Scientific justification", "Argumentation as a logical action", what is the specificity of online argumentation? what is the specificity of teachers in this category and how do they have online argumentation different from other teachers... so far, many answers to these and other questions are missing from the pages of this text. Conclusion: Return the article to the authors for revision. 2. Specifically, what techniques and methods were used? 3. What is the essence of the "Online scientific argumentation strategy"? 4. What is the relevance of the study?

		5. The journal is international, so entry should be made starting with international UN initiatives in education (UNESCO, Council of Europe, IAU, etc.) 6. Lists are not recommended. It is necessary to cite. And if it is a review for the introduction, it is necessary to give at least 2-3 words of commentary on what the source is talking about. 7. qualitative and quantitative analysis is nothing new, there is no novelty in it, why give a quote for it? 8. What test are we talking about? Is it authored or has it already been developed by someone else? Where is the stimulus material? 9. We need to show the text of this test 10. If it is a t-Student, then write so - Student's t-test
