Reviewer(s)' Comments to Author:
Reviewer: 1

Recommendation: Major Revision

Comments:
Read other published articles in reputable journals and learn how they are written and presented.

Additional Questions:
1. Originality: Does the paper contain new and significant information adequate to justify publication?: This article is well written academically based on suitable research methodology and discussing the results and findings accordingly to the research objectives. Very interesting study on this topic.

2. Relationship to Literature: Does the paper demonstrate an adequate understanding of the relevant literature in the field and cite an appropriate range of literature sources? Is any significant work ignored?: The range and depth of literature is appropriate, suitable and pertinent to this study.

3. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?: The research method/design is not clearly described. The purpose, content, and usage of data collection tools are not explained and justified. The validity and reliability processes in data collection and analyses are not described sufficiently.

4. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?: The results and findings accordingly to the research objectives. But this part needs more discussion with references to the relevant and recent literature.

5. Practicality and/or Research implications: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for practice and/or further research? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?: Very interesting study on this topic. The authors have identified implications of this study.

6. Quality of Communication: Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc.: There is mistakes in sentence structures and spellings are around them. Correct them because they are important and influence meaning. Ask for help from professional translator or colleague with good proficiency in English

Recommendation: Minor Revision

Additional Questions:

1. Originality: Does the paper contain new and significant information adequate to justify publication?: The inheritance of peaceful values in society has not received much attention from conflict researchers. Peaceful inheritance functions to keep the community system running well. Maintaining peaceful conditions is as important as resolving conflicts.

However, the trend of problems that occur in the research location needs to be strengthened so that this paper can provide a broader theoretical contribution.

2. Relationship to Literature: Does the paper demonstrate an adequate understanding of the relevant literature in the field and cite an appropriate range of literature sources? Is any significant work ignored?: The use of literature can support the discussion in the article and is relevant to the topic of the article. But some articles are too past. For example, there is a quote from an article in 1997. Thus, the literature needs to be updated.

3. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?: The methods (data collection, data analysis, research) used to have good accuracy and are relevant to the theory used by the author.

References referred to in the introduction section, literature review, and in other sections are well structured and relevant to the discussion.

4. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?: Results are presented clearly. There are findings of patterns of maintaining social harmony through local wisdom and the Social Harmony Trilogy for Social Disaster Resilience produced by the author. Including networking to maintain social harmony with various parties, is well described.

The conclusion succeeded in binding each of the sections described in the previous sections.

5. Practicality and/or Research implications: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for practice and/or further research? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?: The implications are relevant to the conclusion. But some parts are out of context from the previous elements. For example, suddenly talking about society 5.0 which was not discussed in the previous sections

If indeed the author wants to link it with society 5.0, the author needs to make a theoretical bridge.

6. Quality of Communication: Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc.: The author managed to clearly express the problems found in the field.

Findings in the form of local traditions are a good thing expressed by the author because they are the result of the culture of the local community. Although the findings of these traditions use the local language, the author explains the term using language that is easy to understand.

Recommendation: Reject

Comments:

Please see the comments.

Additional Questions:

1. Originality: Does the paper contain new and significant information adequate to justify publication?: This manuscript has several weaknesses. In the introduction:

1. The author has not stated the broad theme or topic of the study
2. The author has not provided a convincing answer Why is this article important
3. the summary of the literature and cites the most important previous studies is limited
4. There are no gaps indicated that the current study address

2. Relationship to Literature: Does the paper demonstrate an adequate understanding of the relevant literature in the field and cite an appropriate range of literature sources? Is any significant work ignored?: This manuscript does not demonstrate a good understanding of the current literature. Besides, The literature review has not provided the reader with insights into what is known about the problem they seek to address, theoretically or practically.

The literature review in this manuscript has not also provided the reader with insights into the limitations of our knowledge. The inclusion of these limitations in the literature review section will help the authors to justify why their research needs to be undertaken.

3. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?: The authors should revise their manuscript by updating the method section.

In doing so, the authors must specify the methods they used to identify, collect, and analyze their data.

A reader would be left wondering what such a design might include. How was the interview implemented in the field? How were the respondents selected? How did the authors control for bias?

Similarly, what exactly did the authors use as primary and secondary data? Both forms of data need to be better specified and explained. Was the primary data about community knowledge extracted from interviews or other documents?

4. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?: The authors should revise their manuscript so that the content of the findings (results) section is limited to just that: the reporting of the results.

The focus of the discussion section should be on how the findings presented in the manuscript contribute to the broader literature.

To this end, the authors could discuss how the findings address a gap in the literature, extend our current knowledge, or provide new insights into a specific phenomenon or problem

5. Practicality and/or Research implications: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for practice and/or further research? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?: No implication provided in this manuscript

6. Quality of Communication: Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc.: A professional proofreading is needed to enhance this manuscript.

Dear Dr. Arsal,

Manuscript ID JACPR-01-2022-0673.R1 entitled "The Inheritance of Local Wisdom for Maintaining Peace in Multicultural Society" which you submitted to the Journal of Aggression, Conflict and Peace Research, has been reviewed. The comments of the reviewer(s) are included at the bottom of this letter.

I can see that you have attended to the comments and I am not sure why one reviewer was unable to see your amendments and is requesting a table. I can see you have highlighted them in red. I just have a couple of revisions.

1.) Your figures should be removed. They are not necessary. Figure 1 is not producing well and Figure 2 includes pictures of people and without their consent it should not appear. I am sensitive to these issues - you need permissions.

2.) Please have your amendments proofed. I can see you have used a proof reader but it was not clear at all to me that the revisions have been considered. The abstract, for example, has some writing errors in it (e.g. missing words such as is). Please check your amended sections again.

I am expecting to accept your paper when it returns and so I would be grateful if you could please attend to this.

To revise your manuscript, log into <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jacpr> and enter your Author Centre, where you will find your manuscript title listed under "Manuscripts with Decisions." Additional Questions:

1. Originality: Does the paper contain new and significant information adequate to justify publication?: The article contains new information and contributes to complement existing research. In this paper, the author has discussed in depth the inheritance of peaceful values which in the previous article had not been explored. The author has also strengthened the article so that it provides a broader theoretical contribution.

2. Relationship to Literature: Does the paper demonstrate an adequate understanding of the relevant literature in the field and cite an appropriate range of literature sources? Is any significant work ignored?: The literature used by the author is very supportive in outlining the problems as well as the theoretical basis. The author has revised several articles that are less relevant to the discussion.

Based on my reading, the author has carefully conducted a literature review to get a good journal article

3. Methodology: Is the paper's argument built on an appropriate base of theory, concepts, or other ideas? Has the research or equivalent intellectual work on which the paper is based been well designed? Are the methods employed appropriate?: The methods (data collection, data analysis, research) used are getting sharper. Research informants are clearly depicted.

The references referred to in the introduction section, literature review, and in other sections are increasingly well structured and relevant to the discussion.

4. Results: Are results presented clearly and analysed appropriately? Do the conclusions adequately tie together the other elements of the paper?: The findings are getting narrower and appear more prominent.

Results are presented clearly. There are findings of patterns of maintaining social harmony through local wisdom and the Social Harmony Trilogy for Social Disaster Resilience produced by the author. Including networking to maintain social harmony with various parties, is well described.

The conclusion succeeded in binding each of the sections described in the previous sections

5. Practicality and/or Research implications: Does the paper identify clearly any implications for practice and/or further research? Are these implications consistent with the findings and conclusions of the paper?: This paper focuses more on the point of inheriting the value of peace after eliminating the discussion about society 5.0

6. Quality of Communication: Does the paper clearly express its case, measured against the technical language of the field and the expected knowledge of the journal's readership? Has attention been paid to the clarity of expression and readability, such as sentence structure, jargon use, acronyms, etc.: The author managed to clearly express the problems found in the field.
