REVIEWER'S COMMENTS

Introduction:

- The description of Figure 1 within the text is overly detailed and could be more concise. Focus on the key trends and avoid repeating every data point.
- Figure 3 is appropriately introduced and described. However, the figure caption should be more precise. Instead of "the period of 2018-2022," specify "2018-2022."
- The theoretical underpinnings presented, including Keynesian multiplier theory and Walras' general equilibrium theory, are relevant. However, their connection to the specific research questions could be strengthened. How do these theories directly inform the analysis and interpretation of the results? The discussion of classical and turnpike theories feels somewhat disconnected and could be streamlined or removed to maintain focus.

Method of Research:

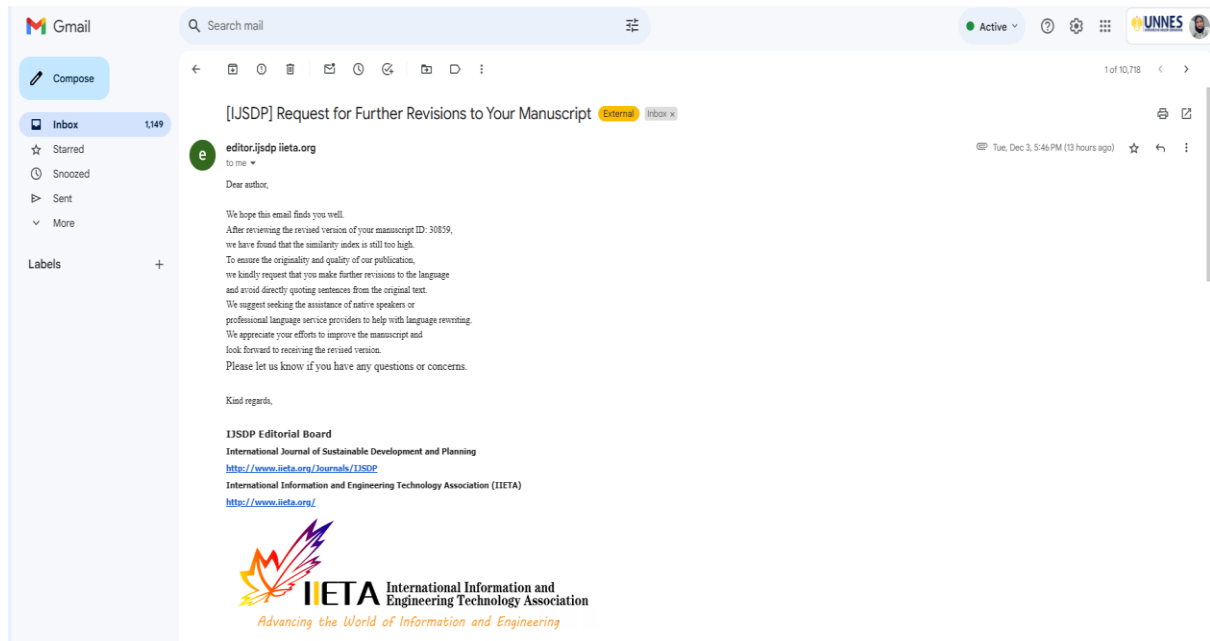

- I recommend providing more detail on the specific data sources and any limitations associated with the data. For instance, how was the labor data collected, and are there any potential biases?

Results and Discussion:

- Table 5 presents the output, income, and labor multipliers. Highlight the tourism sector row. The discussion surrounding Table 5 is generally well-done, but I recommend elaborating on the reasons for the relatively low income and labor multipliers in the tourism sector. Are there specific characteristics of the tourism industry in Central Java that contribute to these lower multipliers?

Decision: Minor Revisions.
